Adult development Biological changes influence psychological and interpersonal/social developmental changes, which are often described by stage theories of human development. Changes occur at the cellular level and are partially explained by biological theories of adult development and aging. Stage theories typically focus on "age-appropriate" developmental tasks to be achieved at each stage. The map is made of a four-column worksheet that guides a process of self-reflective inquiry. Erik Erikson and Carl Jung proposed stage theories of human development that encompass the entire life span, and emphasized the potential for positive change very late in life. The book An Everyone Adult development encompasses the changes that occur in biological and psychological domains of human life from the end of adolescence until the end of one's life. to further psychological development 177109c698
