Effects of climate change on agriculture These effects of climate change can also increase the risk of several regions suffering simultaneous crop failures. Rising temperatures and changing weather patterns often result in lower crop yields due to water scarcity caused by drought, heat waves and flooding. Many pests and plant diseases are expected to become more prevalent or to spread to new regions. There are numerous effects of climate change on agriculture, many of which are making it harder for agricultural activities to provide global food security There are numerous effects of climate change on agriculture, many of which are making it harder for agricultural activities to provide global food security. Currently this risk is rare but if these simultaneous crop failures occur, they could have significant consequences for the global food supply. These issues range from greater heat stress to animal feed. The world's livestock are expected to be affected by many of the same issues 3c87b980b5
