Replay review in gridiron football 2019 season, the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS), which establishes the rules for most high school and youth organizations In gridiron football, replay review is a method of reviewing a play using cameras at various angles to determine the accuracy of the initial call of the officials. An instant replay can take place in the event of a close or otherwise controversial call, either at the request of a team's head coach (with limitations) or the officials themselves b83230dfc6

American football resulted from several major divergences from association football and rugby football. Most notably the rule changes were instituted by Walter Camp, a Yale University athlete and coach who is considered to be the "Father of American Football". Among these important changes were the introduction of the hike spot, of down-and-distance rules, and of the legalization of forward... b83230dfc6

American football NFL Rules 2012, pp. 107. 11. 71-72. NFHS Rules American football, referred to simply as football in the United States and Canada and also known as gridiron football, is a team sport played by two teams of eleven players on a rectangular field with goalposts at each end. Points are scored primarily by advancing the ball into the opposing team. 53-54. 21-22. NCAA Rules 2011-2012, p. The offense, the team with possession of the oval-shaped football, attempts to advance down the field by running with the ball or throwing it, while the defense, the team without possession of the ball, aims to stop the offense's advance and to take control of the ball for themselves. NCAA Rules 2011-2012, pp. The offense must advance the ball at least ten yards in four downs or plays; if they fail, they turn over the football to the defense, but if they succeed, they are given a new set of four downs to continue the drive. History of American football football. The NFHS publishes the rules followed by most local high school football associations. Both games have their origin in multiple varieties of football played in the United Kingdom in the mid-19th century, in which a football is kicked at a goal or kicked over a line, which in turn were based on the varieties of English public school football games descending from medieval ball games. More than 13,000 high schools participate in football, and in The history of American football can be traced to early versions of rugby football and association football b83230dfc6

High school football adopted NFHS rules in 2019. It is the level of tackle football that is played before college football. It ranks among the most popular interscholastic sports in both countries. With their common ancestry, NFHS rules of high school American football are largely similar to those of college football, though High school football, also known as prep football, is gridiron football played by high school teams in the United States and Canada b83230dfc6

During professional and most college football games, seven officials operate on the field. Since 2015, Division I college football conferences have used eight game officials, the Alliance of American Football (AAF) in its only season in 2019 and the 2020 version of XFL have used eight game officials. College games outside the Division I level use six or seven officials. Arena football, high school football, and other levels of football have other officiating systems, which use less than the standard seven officials. Clock management Depending on the game situation, clock management may entail playing in a manner that either slows or quickens the time elapsed from the game clock, to either extend the match or hasten its end. Clock management strategies are a significant part of American football, where an elaborate set of rules dictates when the game clock stops between downs, and when it continues to run. When the desired outcome is to end the match quicker, it is analogous to "running out the clock" (and associated counter-tactics) seen in many sports. In NFHS and NCAA rules, this is the same as when the ball is carried out of bounds In gridiron football, clock management is an aspect of game strategy that focuses on the game clock and/or play clock to achieve a desired result, typically near the end of a match. The clock is restarted when a ball is returned to the field in the NFL b83230dfc6

Replay reviews are utilized in some high school games, and also for many games at the college level and above. Before the 2019 season, the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS), which establishes the rules for most high school and youth organizations in the United States (though not for Texas high schools), did not allow replay reviews even when the equipment exists to enable the practice. Effective in 2019, NFHS gave its member... b83230dfc6
