Evidence-based nursing This approach is using evidence-based practice (EBP) as a foundation. EBN is a process founded on the collection, interpretation, appraisal, and integration of valid, clinically significant, and applicable research. The goal of EBN is to improve the health and safety of patients while also providing care in a cost-effective manner to improve the outcomes for both the patient and the healthcare system. a set of standard requirements for qualitative research published in nursing journals is proposed that reflects a uniform definition of qualitative research Evidence-based nursing (EBN) is an approach to making quality decisions and providing nursing care based upon personal clinical expertise in combination with the most current, relevant research available on the topic. The. EBN implements the most up to date methods of providing care, which have been proven through appraisal of high quality studies and statistically significant research findings

Grounded theory The methodology contrasts with the hypothetico-deductive model used in traditional scientific research. Grounded theory involves the application of inductive reasoning. The methodology involves Grounded theory is a systematic methodology that has been largely applied to qualitative research conducted by social scientists. The methodology involves the construction of hypotheses and theories through the collecting and analysis of data. Multimethodology All of these approaches to professional and academic research emphasize that monomethod research can be improved through the use of multiple data sources, methods, research methodologies, perspectives, standpoints, and paradigms. One could argue that mixed methods research is a special case of multimethod research. Another applicable, but less often used label, for multi or mixed research is methodological pluralism. research is more specific in that it includes the mixing of qualitative and quantitative data, methods, methodologies, and/or paradigms in a research Multimethodology or multimethod research includes the use of more than one method of data collection or research in a research study or set of related studies. Mixed methods research is more specific in that it includes the mixing of qualitative and quantitative data, methods, methodologies, and/or paradigms in a research study or set of related studies

A study based on grounded theory is likely to begin with a question, or even just with the collection of qualitative data. As researchers review the data collected, ideas or concepts become apparent to the researchers. These ideas/concepts are said to "emerge" from the data. The researchers tag those ideas/concepts with codes that succinctly summarize the ideas/concepts. As more data are...
