== Gameplay == While there is no unanimous agreement on what constitutes a heist film, there are some common characteristics that most films in the genre share. The money and jewelry have never been recovered. The heist's magnitude made it one of the longest-investigated crimes in U.S. history; the latest arrest associated with the robbery was made in 2014, which resulted in acquittal. == History == Places == The vault that housed the diamonds is situated two floors below the main floor. It was protected by multiple security mechanisms, including an advanced combination lock, infrared heat detectors, a seismic sensor, Doppler radar, and a magnetic field detector. The building itself had a private security force and was located in the heavily guarded and monitored Antwerp diamond district. Tower Heist began development as early as 2005, based on an idea by Murphy that would star him and an all-black cast of comedians as a heist group who rob Trump International Hotel and Tower. As the script developed and changed into an Ocean's Eleven-style caper, Murphy left the project. Ratner continued to develop the idea into what would eventually become Tower...

One of the early defining heist films was The Asphalt Jungle (1950), which according to Film Genre 2000, "almost single-handedly popularized the genre for mainstream cinema". It featured robbers whose personal failings ultimately led to the failure of their robbery. Similar films using this formula were Armored Car Robbery (1950), The Killing (1956), and The Getaway (1972). By the 1990s, heist films began to "experiment and play with these conventions", incorporating elements such as comedy into their stories, as Topkapi had so successfully in 1964. The caper, a subgenre of the crime film, organises its narrative around the assembly of a crew, the execution of a robbery and its subsequent unravelling.
