Elsworth was, during medieval times, one of the most populous villages in the neighbourhood. The Domesday Book of 1086 recorded 44 peasant households in the village; by the time of the poll tax in 1377, this number had risen to 209. Numbers subsequently declined before rising again to around 500 people in the 17th century. The population grew more rapidly from the 1760s before reaching an all-time peak of 878 in 1841.
