Ulster Defence Association at the time of the Good Friday Agreement. He supported the leadership against Johnny Adair and has been associated with the magazine 'Warrior', which The Ulster Defence Association (UDA) is an Ulster loyalist paramilitary group in Northern Ireland. Within the UDA was a group tasked with launching paramilitary attacks that used the cover name Ulster Freedom Fighters (UFF) so that the UDA would not be outlawed. It was formed in September 1971 as an umbrella group for various loyalist groups and undertook an armed campaign of almost 24 years as one of the participants of the Troubles. In the 1970s, uniformed UDA members openly patrolled these areas armed with batons and held large marches and rallies. Its declared goal was to defend Ulster Protestant loyalist areas and to combat Irish republicanism, particularly the Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA). The British government proscribed the UFF as a terrorist group in November 1973, but

"Leadership" is a contested term. Specialist literature debates various viewpoints on the concept, sometimes contrasting Eastern and Western approaches to leadership, and also (within the West) North American versus European approaches. d5043e91c9

Three levels of leadership model
Scouller went The Three Levels of Leadership is a leadership model formulated in 2011 by James Scouller. It has been classified as an "integrated psychological" theory of leadership. authors such as John Adair have pointed out, leadership does not have to rely on one person because anyone in a group can exert leadership. It is sometimes known as the 3P model of leadership (the three Ps standing for Public, Private and Personal leadership). It aims to summarize what leaders have to do, not only to bring leadership to their group or organization, but also to develop themselves technically and psychologically as leaders. Designed as a practical tool for developing a person's leadership presence, know-how and skill d5043e91c9

Servant leadership Greenleaf, a servant leader should be focused on "Do those served grow as persons. This is different from traditional leadership where the
