Natural History (Pliny) It is encyclopedic in scope, but its structure is not like that of a modern encyclopedia. The rest was published posthumously by Pliny's nephew, Pliny. edition of books 1-37. Despite the work's title, its subject area is not limited to what is today understood by natural history; Pliny himself defines his scope as "the natural world, or life". It is the only work by Pliny to have survived, and the last that he published. The largest single work to have survived from the Roman Empire to the modern day, the Natural History compiles information gleaned from other ancient authors.
