Freedom of information laws by country They have also conducted a nationwide campaign to train journalists on the knowledge and application of the ATI laws as Freedom of information laws allow access for the general public to data held by national governments and, where applicable, by state and local governments. The emergence of freedom of information legislation was a response to increasing dissatisfaction with the secrecy surrounding government policy development and decision making. In recent years the term "Access to Information Act" has also been used. In many countries there are constitutional guarantees. of the ATI law and its provision. Such laws establish a "right-to-know" legal process by which requests may be made for government-held information, to be provided at little or no cost, barring standard exceptions. Also variously referred to as open records, or sunshine laws (in the United States), governments are typically bound by a duty to publish and promote openness
