Gender and security sector reform "S/RES/2106(2013) - Gender and security sector reform is an emerging subfield of security sector reform (SSR) that is both practical and conceptual. The overall objectives of SSR programmes - as defined both by the state in question and any international donors supporting the process - tend to include improving service delivery, enhancing local ownership and ensuring the sustainability of security sector institutions. SSR generally is a comprehensive framework within which all or part of a state's security sector undergoes a process of transformation in order to bring it more into line with principles such as democratic oversight, good governance and the rule of law.
