Elementary algebra is the main form of algebra taught in schools. It examines mathematical statements using variables for unspecified values and seeks to determine for which values the statements are true. To do so, it uses different methods of transforming equations to isolate variables. Linear algebra is a closely related field that investigates linear equations and combinations of them called systems of linear equations. It provides methods to find the values that... Statistics is both a formal science and a practical theory of scientific inquiry, and both aspects are considered in statistics education. Education in statistics has similar concerns as does education in other mathematical sciences, like logic, mathematics, and computer science. At the same time, statistics is concerned with evidence-based reasoning, particularly with the analysis of data. Therefore, education in statistics has strong similarities to education in empirical disciplines like psychology and chemistry, in which education is closely tied to "hands-on" experimentation.

Mastery learning , 90% accuracy) in prerequisite knowledge before moving on to new material. Mastery learning is based on the idea that all students can learn effectively with appropriate instruction and sufficient time, and it contrasts with traditional teaching methods that often focus on covering a set amount of material within a fixed timeframe, regardless of individual student needs. If a student does not initially achieve mastery, they receive additional instruction and support until they do. This approach involves providing students with individualized support and repeated opportunities to demonstrate mastery through assessments. g. variance in student learning is smaller in the first grade when compared to students in the 7th grade (the smart get smarter, and the slower fall further Mastery learning is an instructional strategy and educational philosophy that emphasizes the importance of students achieving a high level of competence (e
