Copy editing In the context of print publication, copy editing is done before typesetting and again before proofreading. The Chicago Manual of Style states that manuscript editing encompasses "simple mechanical corrections Copy editing (also known as copyediting and manuscript editing) is the process of revising written material ("copy") to improve quality and readability, as well as ensuring that a text is free of errors in grammar, style, and accuracy. The Chicago Manual of Style states that manuscript editing encompasses "simple mechanical corrections (mechanical editing) through sentence-level interventions (linear editing) to substantial remedial work on literary style and clarity, disorganized passages, baggy prose, muddled tables and figures, and the like (substantive editing)".

Outside traditional book and journal publishing, the term "copy editing" is used more broadly, and is sometimes referred to as a text being free of errors in grammar, style, and accuracy.
