Old age and driving When frailty is accounted for, and older drivers are compared The correlation between old age and driving has been a notable topic for many years. According to the Insurance. In 2019, drivers 65 years and older accounted for 8,760 motor vehicle traffic deaths and 205,691 non-fatal accidents. older drivers are more likely to be injured in an accident and more likely to die of that injury. Driving is said to help older adults stay mobile and independent, but as their age increases the risk of potentially injuring themselves or others significantly increases as well. When frailty is accounted for, and older drivers are compared to younger persons driving the same amount, the over-representation disappears. In 2018, there were over 45 million licensed drivers in the United States over the age of 65—a 60% increase from 2000. Due to their physical frailty, older drivers are more likely to be injured in an accident and more likely to die of that injury 55451a0e09
