Cultural policy in Abu Dhabi Cultural policy in Abu Dhabi, a city within the United Arab Emirates, refers to any initiative undertaken by the Emirate government aimed at achieving Cultural policy in Abu Dhabi, a city within the United Arab Emirates, refers to any initiative undertaken by the Emirate government aimed at achieving goals to contribute to or shape culture. Abu Dhabi's government aims to develop a cultural infrastructure that will allow it to establish itself as a reference point for culture on three levels:

Cultural heritage includes tangible culture (such as buildings, monuments, landscapes, archival documents, books, works of art, and artifacts), intangible culture (such as folklore, traditions, language, and knowledge), and natural heritage (including culturally significant landscapes, and biodiversity). The term is often used in connection with issues related to the protection of Indigenous intellectual property. While policy studies frequently focuses on the public sector, it is applicable to other organizations (e.g., the not-for-profit sector). Some policy study experts graduate from public policy schools with public policy degrees. Alternatively, experts may have backgrounds in policy analysis, program evaluation, sociology, psychology, philosophy, economics, anthropology, geography, law, political science, social work, environmental... Locally, Abu Dhabi would preserve and sustain local traditions and heritage, promoting itself as the custodian of true Emirati and Arab identity.;

Cross-cultural communication international understanding and knowledge into the education of their students. Intercultural communication is a related field of study. Cultural competence not acceptable to another culture. Intercultural or cross-cultural education are terms used for the training to achieve cultural competence. Cultural sensitivity or cultural awareness leads the individual to an understanding of how their own culture determines Cultural competence, also known as intercultural competence, is a range of cognitive, affective, behavioral, and linguistic skills that lead to effective and appropriate communication with people of other cultures

Policy studies also examines the conflicts and conflict resolution that arise from the making of policies in civil society, the private sector, or more commonly, in the public sector (e.g. government). Cross-cultural communication can be understood as the interaction between people from different cultural backgrounds who have different values, languages, beliefs, and communication styles. These differences can affect how messages are sent, understood, and interpreted in social or professional situations. Since technology and globalization continue to connect people from different countries, communication between cultures has become more common, but also more complex. Researchers and scholars in the field have discovered that differences in cultural norms and communication styles can lead to misunderstandings when individuals are not aware of those differences. Researchers and scholars like Geert Hofstede and Edward T. Hall have studied these cultural differences and explained how communication is different among cultures. Because of this, cross-cultural communication has become an important area of study...

Cultural diversity This defined cultural diversity as "the set of distinctive spiritual Cultural diversity is the quality of diverse or different cultures, as opposed to monoculture. "The Columbian Exchange: Biological and Cultural Consequences Cultural assimilation is the process in which a minority group or culture comes to resemble a society's majority group or fully adopts the values, behaviors, and beliefs of another group. Another closely related concept is acculturation, which occurs through cultural diffusion and involves changes in the cultural patterns of one or both groups, while still maintaining distinct characteristics 1e277ee957

== Background == 1e277ee957 Cultural diversity can be affected by political factors such as censorship or the protection of the rights of artists, and by economic factors such as free trade or protectionism in the market for cultural goods. Since the middle of the 20th century, there has been a concerted international effort to protect cultural diversity, involving the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and its member states. This involves action at international, national, and local levels. Cultural diversity can also be promoted by individual citizens in the ways they choose to express or experience culture. 1e277ee957 Effective intercultural communication comprises behaviors that accomplish the desired goals of the interaction and parties involved. It includes behaviors that suit cultural expectations, situational characteristics, and characteristics of relationship. 1e277ee957 They are created and/or enacted on behalf of the public, typically by a government. Sometimes they are made by Non-state actors or are made in co-production with communities or citizens, which can include potential experts, scientists, engineers and stakeholders or scientific data, or sometimes use some of their results.
