Action potential Miller C (1987).). Action potentials occur in several types of excitable cells, which include animal cells like neurons and muscle cells, as well as some plant cells. Neuromodulation: The Biochemical Control of Neuronal Excitability An action potential (also known as a nerve impulse or "spike" when in a neuron) is a series of quick changes in voltage across a cell membrane. Certain endocrine cells such as pancreatic beta cells, and certain cells of the anterior pituitary gland are also excitable cells. "How ion channel proteins work". An action potential occurs when the membrane potential of a specific cell rapidly rises and falls. This depolarization then causes adjacent locations to similarly depolarize. Determinant In particular, the determinant is nonzero if and only if the matrix is invertible and the corresponding linear map is an isomorphism. textbooks. McConnell (1957). However, if the determinant is zero, the matrix is referred to as singular, meaning it does not have an inverse. Applications In mathematics, the determinant is a scalar-valued function of the entries of a square matrix. gatech. Determinantal conjecture Lang 1985, §VII. math. edu. Its value characterizes some properties of the matrix and the linear map represented, on a given basis, by the matrix. Retrieved 16 March 2018. The determinant of a matrix A is commonly denoted $\det(A)$, $\det A$, or $|A|$. 1 "Determinants and Volumes" da3d35937f
