@Hedonil: The new search history tool at <https://tools.wmflabs.org/xtools/blame/?style=new> is very useful, but what does starting date and ending date mean? For example, is the starting date the date you want to move forward from or back from? The tool can be used without filling in those boxes, but it would be good to know what they mean. --P123ct1 (talk) 18:16, 2 July 2014 (UTC) ca6a69cb15 @Blaze The Wolf, have you tried "new" Vector? @AHollender... ca6a69cb15 These restrictions don't apply any longer - it's now unlimited. Thus, in reply to your question/suggestion, I removed both fields from the form. --Hedonil (talk) 09:24, 3 July 2014 (UTC) ca6a69cb15

We're about to put the finishing touches on X!'s tools suite with all its submodules (modern, userfriendly GUI, new features, more speed). One of the primordial purposes of begin and end was to show some results even if exceeding the old TS-threshold (50,000 revisions). ca6a69cb15 == Visual guides == ca6a69cb15 I should probably specify that not everyone who has this issue is autistic. Dyslexia can also make reading articles an issue. — Blaze The WolfTalkBlaze Wolf#6545 16:44, 24 September 2021 (UTC) ca6a69cb15 Hello! So I had an idea of an option in the settings that would make articles a bit easier to read. My reasoning behind this is people like me (I'm autistic) have a hard time reading some longer sections of articles. This is mainly due to having sort of a short attention span, making it hard to read long sections of articles in one sitting. I propose some way to break up article sections in a way that makes it easier to read. I'm not exactly sure how we would do this which is why I put this in idea lab. Some of the ideas I have are making the text slightly larger, making different parts of the article highlighted in different colors, or making the space between different parts of the article/section larger. Let me know what you guys think and if you guys have any other ideas as to how we would make larger articles easier to read. — Blaze The WolfTalkBlaze Wolf#6545 16:40, 24 September 2021 (UTC) ca6a69cb15
