Child Special education, least restrictive environment, response to intervention A child (pl. children) is a human being between the stages of birth and puberty, or between the developmental period of infancy and puberty. They are generally classed as unable to make serious decisions. light. The term may also refer to an unborn human being. In English-speaking countries, the legal definition of child generally refers to a minor, in this case as a person younger than the local age of majority (there are exceptions such as, for example, the consumption and purchase of alcoholic beverages even after said age of majority), regardless of their physical, mental and sexual development as biological adults. Children generally have fewer rights and responsibilities than adults. Many of these disorders include: autism, dyslexia, dyscalculia, and ADHD cbe54a8b22

Some characters that were first introduced as fully fleshed-out characters become subsequently used as stock characters in other works - for example, the Ebenezer Scrooge character from A Christmas Carol, upon whom the "miser" stereotype is based, and whose name now has become a shorthand for it. Some stock characters incorporate more than one stock character; for example, a bard may also be a wisecracking jester. cbe54a8b22
