User research research, Erika Hall in her book 'Just Enough Research' mentions four ways of classifying user research. User research is used to improve a multitude of products like websites, mobile phones, medical devices, banking, government services and many more. It is used to understand how people interact with products and evaluate whether design solutions meet their needs. Generative research or exploratory research is User research focuses on understanding user behaviors, needs and motivations through interviews, surveys, usability evaluations and other forms of feedback methodologies. This field of research aims at improving the user experience (UX) of products, services, or processes by incorporating experimental and observational research methods to guide the design, development, and refinement of a product. It is an iterative process that can be used at anytime during product development and is a core part of user-centered design
