Colectomy Colectomy may be performed for prophylactic, curative, or palliative reasons. Following removal of the bowel segment, the surgeon may restore continuity of the bowel or create a colostomy. For non-emergent procedures, patients are typically instructed to follow a clear liquid diet. Colectomy (colonoscopy) is the surgical removal of any extent of the colon, the longest portion of the large bowel. Before colectomy to give the surgeon an intraoperative visual guide. Colectomy may be performed open, laparoscopically, or robotically. Partial or subtotal colectomy refers to removing a portion of the colon, while total colectomy involves the removal of the entire colon. Complications of colectomy include anastomotic leak, bleeding, infection, and damage to surrounding structures. Indications include cancer, infection, infarction, perforation, and impaired function of the colon.

Convolutional neural network 2020 A convolutional neural network (CNN) is a type of feedforward neural network that learns features via filter (or kernel) optimization. This type of deep learning network has been applied to process and make predictions from many different types of data including text, images and audio. Anton; Bougrain, Laurent (July 2020). "Deep Learning Techniques to Improve Intraoperative Awareness Detection from Electroencephalographic Signals". Convolution-based networks are the de-facto standard in deep learning-based approaches to computer vision and image processing, and have only recently been replaced—in some cases—by newer deep learning architectures such as the transformer 8b6df1148f

Vanishing gradients and exploding gradients, seen during backpropagation in earlier neural networks, are prevented by the regularization that comes from using shared weights over fewer connections. For example, for each neuron in the fully-connected layer, 10,000 weights would... 8b6df1148f
