Human history They migrated out of Africa during the Last Ice Age and had spread across Earth's continental land except Antarctica by the end of the Ice Age 12,000 years ago. Human history or world history is the record of humankind from prehistory to the present.

Soon afterward, the Neolithic Revolution in West Asia brought the first systematic husbandry of plants and animals, and saw many humans transition from a nomadic life to a sedentary existence as farmers in permanent settlements. The growing complexity of human societies necessitated systems of accounting and writing. Modern humans evolved in Africa around 300,000 years ago and Human history or world history is the record of humankind from prehistory to the present. Modern humans evolved in Africa around 300,000 years ago and initially lived as hunter-gatherers

A Study of History A Study of History is a 12-volume universal history by the British historian Arnold J. Evans, "enjoyed only a brief vogue before disappearing into the obscurity in which it has languished". It received enormous popular attention but according to historian Richard J. Toynbee, published from 1934 to 1961. Toynbee, published from 1934 to 1961. It received enormous popular A Study of History is a 12-volume universal history by the British historian Arnold J. Toynbee's goal was to trace the development and decay of 19 or 21 world civilizations in the historical record, applying his model to each of these civilizations, detailing the stages through which they all pass: genesis, growth, time of troubles, universal state, and disintegration

These developments paved the way for the emergence of early civilizations in Mesopotamia, Egypt, the Indus Valley, and China, marking... The 19 (or 21) major civilizations, as Toynbee sees them, are: Egyptian, Andean, Sumerian, Babylonian, Hittite, Minoan, Indic, Hindu, Syriac, Hellenic, Western, Orthodox Christian (having two branches: the main... The "world-system" refers to the inter-regional and transnational division of labor, which divides the world into core countries, semi-periphery countries, and periphery countries. Core countries have higher-skill, capital-intensive industries, and the rest of the world has low-skill, labor-intensive industries and extraction of raw materials. This constantly reinforces the dominance... 94c1a373c0 Tim Berners-Lee invented the World Wide Web while working at CERN in 1989. He proposed a "universal linked information system" using several concepts and technologies, the most fundamental of which was the connections that existed between information. He developed the first web server, the first web browser, and a document formatting protocol, called Hypertext Markup Language (HTML). After... 94c1a373c0

World-systems theory World-systems theory (also known as world-systems analysis or the world-systems perspective) is a multidisciplinary approach to world history and social World-systems theory (also known as world-systems analysis or the world-systems perspective) is a multidisciplinary approach to world history and social change which emphasizes the world-system (and not nation states) as the primary (but not exclusive) unit of social analysis. World-systems theorists argue that their theory explains the rise and fall of states, income inequality, social unrest, and imperialism 94c1a373c0

Post-classical history The period is characterized by the expansion of civilizations geographically and the development of trade networks between civilizations. The Earth and Its Peoples: A Global History, Brief Edition. ISBN 978-1-305-14709-6 In world history, post-classical history refers to the period from about 500 CE to 1500 CE, roughly corresponding to the European Middle Ages. Vol. This period is also called the medieval era, post-antiquity era, post-ancient era, pre-modernity era, or pre-modern era. (2014). Boston: Cengage Learning. Women's history Women's history is the study of the role that women have played in history and the methods required to do so. Inherent in the study of women's history is the belief that more traditional recordings of history have minimised or ignored the contributions of women to different fields and the effect that historical events had on women as a whole; in this respect, women's history is often a form of historical revisionism, seeking to challenge or expand the traditional historical consensus. It includes the study of the history of the growth Women's history is the study of the role that women have played in history and the methods required to do so. It includes the study of the history of the growth of women's rights throughout recorded history, personal achievements over a period of time, the examination of individual and groups of women of historical significance, and the effect that historical events have had on women 94c1a373c0

Big History It explores human existence in the context of this bigger picture. Big History resists specialization and searches for universal patterns or trends. It is taught at universities as well as primary and secondary schools often using web-based interactive presentations. Worlds Together: Worlds Apart Big History is an academic discipline that examines history from the Big Bang to the present. It examines long time frames using a multidisciplinary approach based on combining numerous disciplines from science and the humanities. Boston and New York: Bedford/St. Martin's, 2009. Tignor, Robert, et al. Ways of the World: A Brief Global History, 2 vols. It integrates studies of the cosmos, Earth, life, and humanity using empirical evidence to explore cause-and-effect relations

History of the World Wide Web The term is often used as a synonym for the Internet, but the Web is a service that operates over the Internet, just as email and Usenet do. The World Wide Web ("WWW", "W3" or simply "the Web") is a global information medium that users can access via computers connected to the Internet. The history of the Internet and the history of hypertext date back significantly further than that of the World Wide Web. Environmental history first emerged in the United States out of the environmental movement of the 1960s and 1970s, and much of its impetus still stems from present-day global environmental concerns. The field was founded on conservation issues but has broadened in scope to include more general social and scientific history and may deal with cities, population or sustainable development. As all history occurs in the natural world, environmental history tends to focus on particular time-scales, geographic regions, or key themes. It is also a strongly multidisciplinary subject that draws widely on both the humanities and... Historian David Christian has been credited with coining the term "Big History" while teaching one of the first such courses at Macquarie University. An all-encompassing study...

Globalization This is made possible by the reduction of barriers to international trade, the liberalization of capital movements, the development of transportation, and the advancement of information and communication technologies. It developed its current meaning sometime in the second half of the 20th century, and came into popular use in the 1990s to describe the unprecedented international connectivity of the post-Cold War world. Sharp "International cooperation as a stepping-stone to a world government".
