While... The opening act's performance serves to "warm up" the audience, making it appropriately excited and enthusiastic for the headliner. Guided by Deng Xiaoping, who is often credited as the "General Architect", the reforms were launched by the ruling Chinese Communist Party (CCP) on December 18, 1978 at the third plenary session of the 11th CCP Central Committee, during the Boluan Fanzheng period. In 1979, Deng launched the Four Modernizations, aiming to modernize China's economy. A parallel set of political reforms were launched by Deng and his allies in the 1980s, but ended with the 1989 Tiananmen Square protests and massacre, halting further political liberalization. The economic reforms were revived after Deng Xiaoping's southern tour in 1992. Reform and opening up gradually became the main component of socialism with Chinese characteristics, constituting Deng Xiaoping Theory, and was incorporated into the CCP constitution in 1997 and written into the state constitution in 1999. == Types of openings == Keynote Inauguration Reform and opening up is a major decision and turning point in the history... Professional chess players spend years studying openings, and they continue doing so throughout their careers as opening theory continues to evolve. Players at the club level also study openings, but the importance of the opening phase...

White attacks Black's pawn from the flank. If Black defends the pawn with 2...c6 or 2...e6, this transposes to the English Opening. Thus, the two main independent lines of the Réti begin with either Black pushing by with 2...d4, keeping the game closed, or capturing with 2...dxc4, opening the game. The former line resembles a Benoni Defense with the colors reversed. Similarly to Black in the Benoni, White usually fianchettoes the kingside bishop. 7f1ae81747 1. f4 7f1ae81747 == Background == 7f1ae81747 Grand opening of a business or other institution 7f1ae81747 Overture 7f1ae81747 Vernissage 7f1ae81747 1. The Encyclopaedia of Chess Openings assigns two codes for Bird's Opening: A02 (1.f4) and A03 (1.f4 d5). The opening is named after Czechoslovak chess player Richard Réti (1889–1929). It is considered a hypermodern opening due to White's avoidance of direct occupation of the center with pawns, unlike most openings. Réti championed the hypermodernism movement, which advocated the center being dominated from the wings rather than by direct occupation, and the opening reflects his style. White often fianchettoes both bishops, castles kingside, and avoids playing e4 and d4, instead expanding on the queenside, frequently playing b4. The result of this may be described as the Réti System. A flank opening, it is the fourth most popular and, according to various databases, one of the four most successful of White's twenty possible first moves. White begins the fight for the centre by staking a claim to the d5-square from the wing, in hypermodern style. Although many lines of the English have a distinct character, the opening is often used as a transpositional device in much the same way, though to a lesser extent, as the Zukertort Opening (1.Nf3). In particular, transpositions to the King's Indian Defence and Queen's Gambit Declined are common, among others. This allows players to avoid certain responses to 1.d4 if they desire to, such as the Nimzo-Indian and Grünfeld. The opening is considered reliable and flexible. 7f1ae81747
