Uploading refers to transmitting data from one computer system to another through means of a network. Moving files within a computer system, as opposed to over a network, is called file copying. While uploading can also be defined in the context of sending files between distributed clients, such as with a peer-to-peer (P2P) file-sharing protocol like BitTorrent, the term file sharing is more often used in this case. Common methods of uploading include: uploading via web browsers, FTP clients, and terminals (SCP/SFTP). downloads. Uploading can be used in the context of (potentially many) clients that send files to a central server

Uploading directly contrasts with downloading, where data is received over a network. In the case of users uploading files over the internet, uploading is often slower than downloading as many internet service providers (ISPs) offer asymmetric connections, which offer more network bandwidth for downloading than uploading.

User can create a sync session to make his file up-to-date or a task for scheduler to perform routine work

The HTML4 standard supports requesting data to be requested from a client computer and uploaded to a server. The standard mechanism for this type of data transmission is HTML forms. With HTML forms a user's files can be uploaded by employing <input/> tag with different attributes. This method allows web site developers to implement basic upload functionality. However, it has the following disadvantages:

It later expanded to organize events, provide business incubation, and operate the UploadVR website. After rebranding to Upload and relocating to Marina del Rey in 2017, the company was sued over alleged gender discrimination, sexual harassment, and wrongful termination. The lawsuit was settled in September 2017 and Upload subsequently hired chief operating officer Anne Ahola Ward, who instituted mandatory anti-harassment training before leaving the company in October that year. Lacking financing, Upload shut down its offices and coworking spaces in March 2018, while the UploadVR website remained operational under UVR Media, which was incorporated as a new entity.

The story recounts a daughter whose father has had his memories "uploaded" to the digital cloud, in order to achieve eternal consciousness as a digital being. The opera questions the roles that fate, identity, and the cost of immortality play in our lives. The story is told through two storylines: one through pre-recorded film, and the other by two live opera singers. Live motion-capture projections are also used, allowing for the daughter character to interact with her "digitised" father.
