Night service (public transport) Another common way to distinguish night services from their daytime counterparts is dark-colored line numbers. They typically offer fewer routes and less frequent service. Examples are London and Chicago, where overnight buses are prefixed with an "N" for "night". Night-based services may be differently branded compared to daytime services. As an intermediate approach – between providing full service around the clock and stopping services altogether – it provides more limited service during times of lower passenger volume, saving resources and allowing for maintenance on primary transportation systems. The main transfer Night service, sometimes also known as owl service, is a mode of public transport service operated during the night hours. 50 euro per person.
