International Association of Nitrox and Technical Divers The European Association of Technical Divers (EATD) became part of IANTD in 1993. Originally formed as the International Association of Nitrox Divers in 1985 by Dick Rutkowski it pioneered the introduction of Enriched Air Nitrox diving to the recreational diving community, before its name change in 1992 to reflect the more "technical" diving courses it had begun to teach. Mount was born in March 1939. By 1967 he had made more cave dives than anyone else in the world, according to fellow caver Sheck Exley. In 1970-1 he was diving the Bahamian blue holes on Andros Island and helping Jacques Cousteau make the film The Secret of the Sunken Caves there. By 1972 he was experienced enough to lead a team of cave divers in a recovery operation. He was a founding member of NACD (the National Association for Cave Diving), the first cave diver training organization in the United States. He was the author of one of the first American cave diving texts, The Cave Diving Manual, three years after Sheck Exley's 1969 Dixie Cavern Kings Cave Diving Manual. The two collaborated with... 734fc28364

Nitrox It is usually used for mixtures that contain less than 78% nitrogen Nitrox refers to any gas mixture composed (excepting trace gases) of nitrogen and oxygen. The two most common recreational diving nitrox mixes are 32% and 36% oxygen, which have maximum operating depths of. In the usual application, underwater diving, nitrox is normally distinguished from air and handled differently. The most common use of nitrox mixtures containing oxygen in higher proportions than atmospheric air is in scuba diving, where the reduced partial pressure of nitrogen is advantageous in reducing nitrogen uptake in the body's tissues, thereby extending the practicable underwater dive time by reducing the decompression requirement, or reducing the risk of decompression sickness (also known as the bends). It is usually used for mixtures that contain less than 78% nitrogen by volume. Nitrox refers to any gas mixture composed (excepting trace gases) of
