Interview Consumer research firms sometimes An interview is a structured conversation where one participant asks questions, and the other provides answers. This feature is common to many types of interviews – a job interview or interview with a witness to an event may have no other audience present at the time, but the answers will be later provided to others in the employment or investigative process. think, or as a tool in the form of cognitive interviewing (or cognitive pretesting) for improving questionnaire design. That information may be used or provided to other audiences immediately or later. The interviewer asks questions to which the interviewee responds, usually providing information. In common parlance, the word "interview" refers to a one-on-one conversation between an interviewer and an interviewee. An interview may also transfer information in both directions 7e7f2fcdfb
