Vernacular geography When people refer to geographical regions in a vernacular form they are commonly referred to as imprecise regions. These commonly used descriptive terms do not necessarily use the official or current names for features; and often these concepts of places don't have clear, rigid boundaries. For example, sometimes the same name may refer to more than one feature, and sometimes people in a locality use more than one name for the same feature. Cardiff University launched a web

Climate change denial Climate change denial (also global warming denial) is a form of science denial characterized by rejecting, refusing to acknowledge, disputing, or fighting Climate change denial (also global warming denial) is a form of science denial characterized by rejecting, refusing to acknowledge, disputing, or fighting the scientific consensus on climate change which exists due to extensive and diverse empirical evidence. To a lesser extent, climate change denial can also be implicit when people accept the science but fail to reconcile it with their belief or action. Those promoting denial commonly use rhetorical tactics to give the appearance of a scientific controversy where there is none. Climate change denial includes unreasonable doubts about the extent to which climate change is caused by humans, its effects on nature and human society, and the potential of adaptation to global warming by human actions. Several studies have analyzed these positions b3ce206ea4
