Relationship between science and religion The pair-structured phrases "religion and science" and "science and religion" first emerged in the literature during the 19th century. Albert Einstein supported the compatibility of some interpretations of religion with The relationship between religion and science involves discussions that interconnect the study of the natural world, history, philosophy, and theology. This coincided with the refining of "science" (from the studies of "natural philosophy") and of "religion" as distinct concepts in the preceding few centuries—partly due to professionalization of the sciences, the Protestant Reformation, colonization, and globalization. Even though the ancient and medieval worlds did not have conceptions resembling the modern understandings of "science" or of "religion", certain elements of modern ideas on the subject recur throughout history.
