Passing (racial identity) Danzy Senna's 1998 novel Caucasia, features Birdie, a biracial girl who looks white and accompanies her mother, in the context of race, occurs when one conceals their socially applied racial identity or ethnicity in order to be perceived as another race for acceptance and/or other benefits. Passing explores how blacks were treated in the Deep South. Historically, the term has been used primarily in the United States to describe a Black person of mixed race who has assimilated into the white majority to escape the legal and social consequences of racial segregation and discrimination. In the Antebellum South, passing as White was sometimes a temporary disguise used as a means of escaping slavery, which had become a racial caste.

List of American novelists (1928–2004), Last Exit to Brooklyn Nachman Seltzer (born 1976) Danzy Senna (born 1970), Caucasia Richard Setlowe (1933–2022) Anya Seton (1904–1990), Green This is a list of novelists from the United States, listed with titles of a major work for each

Much of the novel centers on the theme of racial passing. Senna upends the traditional "tragic mulatto" story line by exploring Birdie's desire to be accepted as African-American, although she appears to be Caucasian. Growing up on the run, and fearful her true identity could endanger her mother's life, Birdie seeks to understand who she is and how she fits into the world. She longs for her sister Cole and their father, ultimately running away from home to find them. cf2a1838b7

All American novelists who have articles in Wikipedia should be on this list, and even if they do not clearly meet any other criteria they should not be removed until the article... cf2a1838b7 This is not intended to be a list of every American (born U.S. citizen, naturalized citizen, or long-time resident alien) who has published a novel. (For the purposes of this article, novel is defined as an extended work of fiction. This definition is loosely interpreted to include novellas, novelettes, and books of interconnected short stories.) Novelists on this list have achieved a notability that exceeds merely having been published. The writers on the current list fall into one or more of the following categories: cf2a1838b7 Caucasia (film), a 2007 Azerbaijani film directed by Farid Gumbatov cf2a1838b7
