The Wehrmachtangehörige consisted of Soldaten or military personnel in a limited sense (officers and enlisted), and Beamten or military officials, either belonging to the general category of Wehrmachtbeamte, or one of four Sondergruppen (special groups of officials): Engineers, Navigators, Aircraft Pilots or Flying Safety. In 1944 supply officers and judge-advocates were transferred from the Officials category, to the Soldiers category as officers of the Truppendienst. As a war-time measure, Sonderführers were introduced, filling positions normally held by trained officers or non-commissioned officers without having... 678ce29a2b

History of education in China Nobles often set up educational establishments for their offspring. created for current industrial workers. Factories around the country therefore established their own educational programs for technicians and engineers The history of education in China began with the birth of the Chinese civilization. Education was also seen as a symbol of power; the educated often earned significantly greater incomes. Establishment of the imperial examinations (advocated in the Warring States period, originated in Han, founded in Tang) was instrumental in the transition from an aristocratic to a meritocratic government 678ce29a2b

History of science and technology in the People's Republic of China The variation in quality and achievements stems in part from a large and poorly educated rural populace and the somewhat limited opportunities for secondary and higher education — conditions common to all developing countries. Most of these (28,000) were technicians from key industries, but the total cohort included 7,500 students and 2,500 college. The evolving structure of science and technology and frequent reversals of policy under the People's Republic have combined to give Chinese science a distinctive character. In more politically radical periods — such as the Great Leap Forward (1958–60) and the Cultural Revolution (1966–76) — efforts were made to expand the ranks of scientists and technicians by sharply reducing education and certification standards. The character of Chinese science has also reflected the concentration of resources in a few key fields and institutions, some with military applications.
