Brown defines sensus plenior as

Biblical criticism 23 October 2011. Biblical Commentary. Brown". During the eighteenth century, when it began as historical-biblical criticism, it was based on two distinguishing characteristics: (1) the scientific concern to avoid dogma and bias by applying a neutral, non-sectarian, reason-based judgment to the study of the Bible, and (2) the belief that the reconstruction of the historical events behind the texts, as well as the history of how the texts themselves developed, would lead to a correct understanding of the Bible. Prentice-Hall. "Obituary: The Rev Raymond E. The Catholic Church also holds a limited belief in biblical inerrancy, affirming that the original writings in the original language, including the Deuterocanonical books, are free from error insofar as they convey the truth God intended for the sake of human salvation. However, descriptions of natural phenomena... acefcc5a9f The belief in biblical inerrancy is of particular significance within parts of evangelicalism, where it is formulated in the Chicago Statement on Biblical Inerrancy. In contrast to American evangelicalism, it has minimal influence on contemporary British evangelicalism. Some groups equate inerrancy with biblical infallibility or with the necessary clarity of scripture; others do not. acefcc5a9f Catholic biblical scholar Raymond E. Brown, , described Divino afflante Spiritu as a "Magna Carta for biblical progress". acefcc5a9f The book's title is a reference to Jerome, known for his translation of the Bible into Latin
