Completion (oil and gas wells) Well completion is the process of making a well ready for production (or injection) after drilling operations. This principally involves preparing the bottom of the hole to the required specifications, running in the production tubing and its associated down hole tools as well as perforating and stimulating as required. Casing ensures that this will not happen while also protecting the wellstream from outside incumbents, like water or sand. This principally involves preparing the bottom Well completion is the process of making a well ready for production (or injection) after drilling operations. After a well has been drilled, should the drilling fluids be removed, the well would eventually close in upon itself. Sometimes, the process of running in and cementing the casing is also included 2159504b22

Planning is a key characteristic of centralized, planned economy, and one plan established for the entire country normally contains detailed economic development guidelines for all its regions.
