Holistic grading It differs from other methods of scoring written discourse in two basic ways. large-scale commercial tests such as the GED, TOEFL iBT, and GRE General Test. This type of grading, which is also described as nonreductionist grading, contrasts with analytic grading, which takes more factors into account when assigning a grade. Holistic grading can also be used to assess classroom-based work. And it uses two or more raters, with the final score derived. Rather than counting errors, a paper is judged holistically and often compared to an anchor paper to evaluate if it meets a writing standard. It is also used for placement or academic progression in some institutions Holistic grading or holistic scoring, in standards-based education, is an approach to scoring essays using a simple grading structure that bases a grade on a paper's overall quality. It treats the composition as a whole, not assigning separate values to different parts of the writing d23e7676e6
