Ruhr.2010 2010 - Kulturhauptstadt Europas was the name of the campaign in Germany's Ruhr region that earned it recognition as a European Capital of Culture in 2010. Other cultural capitals were in the same year the Hungarian Pécs (Pécs2010) and Istanbul in Turkey, where similar campaigns were held. This was the first time a region was considered, as Essen represented all 53 towns in the region in the application. Klartext Verlag, 2009, ISBN 978-3-8375-0251-0 Gudrun Norbistrath Ruhr. Hans Hirsch Klartext Verlag, Essen & Historisch-Kulturwissenschaftliche Fakultät der Universität Hans Hirsch (27 December 1878 - 20 August 1940) was an Austrian academic who worked between 1903 and 1914 on the vast "Monumenta Germaniae Historica" sources project, and subsequently became a full-time professional historian. In parallel he built for himself a reputation as a specialist on the (recently "discovered" - or, at least, reclassified by the media) "Sudeten Germans", which marked him out as a more than averagely politicised historian. He accepted an ordinary (full) professorship in history at the German University (as it became known after 1918) in Prague as the war ended, transferring in 1926 to the University of Vienna. Ritter von Srbik, Wilhelm Bauer und Hans Hirsch im Ersten Weltkrieg (PDF). His application for party membership was still outstanding at the time of his death, however. The focus of his research and teaching was on medieval history 34e3717453
