Deborah Smith was born in Boston, Massachusetts on August 12, 1946. Her father was Lester Smith, a radio newscaster in New York. She was raised in Chelsea, Massachusetts. In 1968, she graduated from Boston University with a B.F.A. in theater. At college, she met James Howe, another student studying acting. They married on September 28, 1969, and then together, they moved to New York City for their acting careers. She played in off-Broadway shows, working as an actress from 1969 to 1978. According to publisher Simon & Schuster sometime before 2002, James Howe dreamed up "a vampire rabbit named Bunnacula" in the mid-1970s and he thinks he was inspired by "movie versions of Dracula". Deborah suggested that he write a children's book. Teivat HaHaftaot (תיבת ההפתעות) Elisha (אלישע) == Literature == An asterisk indicates the author is listed in multiple subsections.
