Separation of powers in Australia However, due to the conventions of the Westminster system, a strict separation of powers is not always evident in the Australian political system, with little separation between the executive. This concept is where legislature makes the laws, the executive put the laws into operation, and the judiciary interprets the laws; all independently of each other. fusion. The first three chapters of the Australian Constitution are headed respectively "The Parliament", "The Executive Government", and "The Judicature" The separation of powers in Australia is the division of the institutions of the Australian government into legislative, executive and judicial branches. The term, and its occurrence in Australia, is due to the text and structure of the Australian Constitution, which derives its influences from democratic concepts embedded in the Westminster system, the doctrine of "responsible government" and the United States version of the separation of powers 35d347317e
