The term grunge was adopted by the music industry for a style of music that had become wildly popular in the American Northwest during the early 1990s. The term first appeared in 1972, but it did not become a popular term in widespread media until the late 1980s, influenced by the surge and decline of punk. This view made its mark on the youth of the time and translated into their choice of fashion. e019948e9d Indigenous designers frequently incorporate motifs and customary materials into their wearable artworks, providing a basis for creating items for the haute couture and international fashion markets. Their designs may result from techniques such as beadwork, quillwork, leather, and textile arts, such as weaving, twining, and tufting. In some cases, however, they choose not to include any materials associated with Indigenous cultures. e019948e9d

Fashion journalism Fashion journalism is a component of fashion media, with a focus on writing and photojournalism. The Internet has given rise to several outlets for amateur fashion journalism, such as blogs and vlogs. Fashion journalists write about and critique fashion events and trends as well as cultivate and maintain relationships with stylists and designers. Fashion photography, which supplanted fashion illustration in the 1900s, is a type of photojournalism used in fashion journalism.
