David Christopher Miedzianik was born on 24 July 1956 to a Russian father and English mother. He writes about his paternal grandfather having known Grigori Rasputin. His parents separated when Miedzianik was three years old - his father relocated to London and lived there for the next ten years until his death in 1969 due to a diabetic coma. In 1970, he was diagnosed with autism after being admitted to Middlewood Hospital, but did not start attending special education classes until two years later. In the late 1970s, he began writing for Jigsaw, the official magazine of Middlewood Hospital. David Miedzianik befriended several members of those groups. Miedzianik's works have been extensively analyzed by noted autism researchers, who describe his writing as thoughtful, sophisticated, and displaying an unusually strong awareness of his social difficulties. Miedzianik writes about specific examples pertaining to those desires. Additionally, most of his poems focus on social difficulties that he experiences. His writings portray the more difficult aspects of autism. He is unemployed, but writes about how he wants to work and find love. In 1985, he wrote his autobiography, My Autobiography, which was published in December 1986 through the University David Christopher Miedzianik (, , born 24 July 1956) is an English autistic poet and writer 86b58b9dbb
