Lord's Supper in Reformed theology The outward or physical action of the sacrament is eating bread and drinking wine. Professor of Systematic and Historical Theology at Western Theological Seminary, summarizes John Knox's theology: "That spiritual feeding on Christ, through In Reformed theology, the Lord's Supper or Eucharist is a sacrament that spiritually nourishes Christians and strengthens their union with Christ. " The primary difference between the Reformed doctrine and that of Catholic and Lutheran Christians is that for the Reformed, this presence is believed to be communicated in a spiritual manner by faith rather than by oral consumption. The Reformed doctrine of real presence is called. Reformed confessions, which are official statements of the beliefs of Reformed churches, teach that Christ's body and blood are really present in the sacrament and that believers receive, in the words of the Belgic Confession, "the proper and natural body and the proper blood of Christ 54a9999b39
