Gender pay gap GAO found that EEOC does not fully monitor gender pay enforcement efforts and that Labor does not monitor enforcement trends and performance The gender pay gap or gender wage gap is the average difference between the remuneration for men and women who are employed. The latter typically takes into account differences in hours worked, occupations chosen, education and job experience. Women are generally found to be paid less than men. In other words, the adjusted values represent how much women and men make for the same work, while the non-adjusted values represent how much the average man and woman make in total. Labor (Labor). In the United States, for example, the non-adjusted average woman's annual salary is 79-83% of the average man's salary, compared to 95-99% for the adjusted average salary. There are two distinct measurements of the pay gap: non-adjusted versus adjusted pay gap b012ee6c40

Immigrants are disproportionately represented in prison populations in many Western countries, though notable exceptions exist, such as the United States. In Europe and other regions, higher representation in prisons among immigrants, particularly Muslim populations, has been documented. However, some of the factors contributing to these trends include imprisonment for migration-related offenses and systemic bias in policing and judicial processes, which may inflate crime statistics for immigrant populations relative to their real criminal rate. Research suggests that public perception often exaggerates the connection between immigration and crime, influenced by sensationalised... b012ee6c40
