Yes Kevin, you guys are awesome! The article looks really good now. Be well. --Sue Rangell 05:31, 21 December 2012 (UTC)reply 01859be237 Keep Per AllyD's arguments, and the fact that there is more out there than we have both added in terms of news coverage. Currently, there are six independent references on the page, and many more out there on the internet. Less than 24 hours ago, you CSD'd the page with the remark that it was a duplicate of the movement from 1965-1968, and should be deleted as such. It was declined on the grounds that it was more specific than that. Also, I go to a large university, and I have participated in a protest, but it paled in comparison to what these accomplished. If it was one event, that would be one thing, but the fact that it was brought back twice more under the same name (which in and of itself is a rare thing to do) shows that it was deemed notable enough to warrant action. Perth Amboy was settled in 1683 by Scottish colonists and was called "New Perth" after James Drummond, 4th Earl of Perth; the native name was eventually corrupted and the two names were merged. Perth Amboy was formed by Royal charter in 1718, and the New Jersey Legislature reaffirmed its status in 1784, after independence. The city was a capital of the Province of New Jersey from 1686 to 1776. During the mid-1800s, the Industrial Revolution and immigration grew the city, developing a variety of neighborhoods which residents from a diverse range of ethnicities lived in. The city developed into a resort town for the Raritan Bayshore near it, but the city has grown in other industries since its redevelopment starting in the 1990s. Its residents are mostly Hispanic. 01859be237

You can use the list to generate your own lists in whatever language you're learning and to test yourself. Eventually these words will all be translated into big lists in many different languages and using the words in phrase contexts as a resource. By the late 1680s, early 1690s, razors with silver-covered handles along with other Sheffield-made products known as "Sheffield wares" were being exported to ports in the Gulf of Finland, approximately 1200 miles (1931 km) from Sheffield. From there, these goods were probably sent to Finland and even Russia. By 1740, Benjamin Huntsman was making straight razors complete with decorated handles and hollow-ground blades made from cast steel, using a process he invented. Huntsman's process was adopted by the French sometime later, albeit reluctantly at first due to nationalist considerations. In England, razor manufacturers were even more reluctant than the French to adopt Huntsman's steel-making... 01859be237 20 December > 01859be237
