Occupational therapy Occupational therapy is based on the assumption that engaging in meaningful activities, also referred to as occupations, is a basic human need and that purposeful activity has a health-promoting and therapeutic effect. The World Federation of Occupational Therapists (WFOT) defines occupational therapy as "a client-centred health Occupational therapy (OT), also known as ergotherapy, is a healthcare profession. including occupational therapists, in the 1980s.

Ergotherapy is derived from the Greek ergon which is allied to work, to act and to be active.

Occupational science, the study of humans as 'doers' or 'occupational beings', was developed by interdisciplinary scholars, including occupational therapists, in the 1980s c6e9adb598

Dementia is a syndrome associated with many neurodegenerative diseases, characterized by a general decline in cognitive abilities that affects a person's ability to perform everyday activities. This typically involves problems with memory, thinking, behavior, and motor control. added to their daily routine, the level of performance is enhanced and reduces the burden commonly placed on their caregivers. Dementia is a life-limiting condition, having a significant effect on the individual, their caregivers, and their social relationships in general. The symptoms may be described as occurring in a continuum over several stages. A diagnosis of dementia requires the observation of a change from a person's usual mental functioning and a greater

Masturbation stimulus is involved. Sex therapists will sometimes recommend that female patients take time to masturbate to orgasm, for example, to help improve sexual health. Masturbation is a form of autoeroticism in which a person sexually stimulates their own genitals for sexual arousal or other sexual pleasure, usually to the point of orgasm. Stimulation may involve the use of hands, everyday objects, sex toys, or more rarely, the mouth (autofellatio and autocunnilingus). Masturbation may also be performed with a sex partner, either masturbating together or watching the other partner masturbate, known as "mutual masturbation" c6e9adb598
