Grade inflation indicates that students are studying less in high school, yet an increasing number report high school grades of A– or better. However, higher average grades in themselves do not prove grade inflation. Studies are being made in order Grade inflation (also known as grading leniency) is the general awarding of higher grades for the same quality of work over time, which devalues grades. For this to be grade inflation, it is necessary to demonstrate that the quality of work does not deserve the high grade

Twelfth grade After Twelfth Grade (also known as Grade 12, Senior Year, Standard 12, 12th Standard, 12th Class, or Class 12th or Class 12) is the twelfth and final year of formal or compulsory education. 11th–12th grade education are known as colleges. Some countries have a thirteenth grade, while other countries do not have a 12th grade/year at all. It is typically the final year of secondary school and K–12 in most parts of the world. Students in twelfth grade are usually 17–18 years old. In the 12th grade, students study in one of the three streams: science, humanities, and business studies

Grade inflation is frequently discussed in relation to education in the United States, and to GCSEs and A levels in England and Wales. It is also an issue in many other nations, such as Canada, Australia, New Zealand,

France, Germany, South Korea, Japan, China and India.
