Homelessness in the United States by state Point-in-time counts are also vague measures of homeless populations and are not a precise and definitive indicator for the total number of cases, which may differ in both directions up or down. The most recent figure for 2019, was 567,715 individuals nationally that experienced homelessness at a point in time during this period. The total number of homeless people in the United States fluctuates and constantly changes, hence a comprehensive figure encompassing the entire nation is not issued, since counts from independent shelter providers and statistics managed by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development vary greatly. In February 2013, Marlene Baldwin Homelessness in the United States has differing rates of prevalence by state. a step further by implementing a practice of arresting, jailing and prosecuting individuals who are beg for money or food.
