Himalaya was ordered by the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company (P&O) and laid down at the yard of C. J. Mare & Co., Leamouth, London in November 1851 as an iron paddle steamer, half as large again as any of P&O's previous vessels. With rising coal prices, paddle propulsion was too inefficient and she was altered to a screw vessel while still on the stocks. She was fitted with a two-cylinder simple expansion horizontal trunk engine made by John Penn and Sons at Greenwich of 700 nominal horsepower or 2,050 indicated horsepower (1,530 kW), with a single two-bladed propeller of 18 feet (5.5 m) diameter driving her at a speed of 13 knots (24 km/h; 15 mph). In 1997, Li Lu founded Himalaya as a one-man hedge fund in New York City after spending a year at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette. The firm had an inauspicious start as it focused on investing in Asia but due to the 1997 Asian financial crisis, it posted a 19% loss in its first year resulting in one of its largest investors withdrawing its capital. Li soon became tired of day trading and short selling which exposed him to unlimited downside risk. The firm took stakes in Japanese and Korean stocks that had been battered by the crisis which helped it recover and by mid-2000s, it had around $100 million in assets under management which allowed it to hire more employees. == Distribution == Himalaya Global Holdings (HGH), headquartered in the Cayman Islands, is the parent company of Himalaya Wellness Company and the global holding company of the group. There is a proposed trail of more than 4,500 kilometres (2,800 mi) stretching the length of the Greater Himalaya range from Nanga Parbat in Pakistan to Namche Barwa in Tibet thus passing through, India, Nepal, Bhutan and Tibet. The original concept was to establish a single long distance trekking trail from the east end to the west end of Nepal that includes a total of roughly 1,700 kilometres (1,100 mi) of path. Although an actual continuous route is currently only a concept, if completed it would be the longest and highest alpine hiking track in the world

The Himalayas, which stretch over 2400 km between the Namcha Barwa syntaxis at the eastern end of the mountain range and the Nanga Parbat syntaxis at the western end, are the result of an ongoing orogeny — the collision of the continental crust of two tectonic plates, the Indian Plate thrusting into the Eurasian Plate. Pre-collisional Himalaya Pre-collisional Himalaya is the arrangement of the Himalayan rock units before mountain-building processes resulted in the collision of Asia and India. The collision began in the Cenozoic and it is a type locality of a continental-continental collision. Several models have been advanced to explain the possible arrangements and petrogenesis of the rock units. The reconstruction of the initial configuration of the rock units and the relationship between them is highly controversial, and major concerns relate to the arrangements of the different rock units in three dimensions. The film is a narrative on both the traditions and the impermanent nature of human struggle to retain and express power in the face of the gods. "The gods' triumph" is the call that echoes at the end of the film and expresses the balancing of karmic destinies. The extreme environment of the Himalayas is magnificently contrasted to the delicacy of humanity and the beauty of Tibetan culture. 364632e052
