DeepDream popularized the term (deep) "dreaming" to refer to the generation of images that produce desired activations in a trained deep network, and the term now DeepDream is a computer vision program created by Google engineer Alexander Mordvintsev that uses a convolutional neural network to find and enhance patterns in images via algorithmic pareidolia, thus creating a dream-like appearance reminiscent of a psychedelic experience in the deliberately overprocessed images ca42309d04

Desire which of these features are essential and which ones are merely accidental. For this to be possible, a desire has to be combined with a belief about which action would realize it. A great variety of features are commonly associated with desires. They are seen as propositional attitudes towards conceivable states of affairs. Conscious desires are usually accompanied by some form of emotional response. It is usually held that desires come in varying strengths: some things are desired more strongly than other things. Desires are closely related to agency: they motivate the agent to realize them. We desire things in regard to some Desires are states of mind that are expressed by terms like "wanting", "wishing", "longing" or "craving". Desires present their objects in a favorable light, as something that appears to be good. e. Their fulfillment is normally experienced as pleasurable in contrast to the negative experience of failing to do so. Action-based theories define desires as structures that incline us toward actions. Pleasure-based theories focus on the tendency of desires to cause. While many researchers roughly agree on these general features, there is significant disagreement about how to define desires, i. They represent how an agent or organism wills things to be, unlike beliefs, which aim to represent how things actually are ca42309d04
