Ear training (2007). Karpinski, Gary S. Someone who can identify pitch accurately without any context is said to have perfect pitch, while someone who can only identify pitch provided a reference tone or other musical context is said to have relative pitch. (1990). ISBN 0-300-04536-0. Manual for Ear Training and Sight In music, ear training is the study and practice in which musicians learn various aural skills to detect and identify pitches, intervals, melody, chords, rhythms, solfeges, and other basic elements of music, solely by hearing. The application of this skill is somewhat analogous to taking dictation in written/spoken language. Ear training is typically a component. Someone that can't perceive these qualities at all is said to be tone deaf. Yale University Press. As a process, ear training is in essence the inverse of reading music, which is the ability to decipher a musical piece by reading musical notation.
