History of the race and intelligence controversy (ed. R. Today, the scientific consensus is that genetics does not explain differences in IQ test performance between racial groups. Samelson, Franz (1979), "Putting psychology on the map: Ideology and intelligence testing", in Buss, A.), Psychology in social context, Irvington The history of the race and intelligence controversy concerns the historical development of a debate about possible explanations of group differences encountered in the study of race and intelligence. Since the beginning of IQ testing around the time of World War I, there have been observed differences between the average scores of different population groups, and there have been debates over whether this is mainly due to environmental and cultural factors, or mainly due to some as yet undiscovered genetic factor, or whether such a dichotomy between environmental and genetic factors is the appropriate framing of the debate af823e4b5e

Biosocial criminology Evolution and Behavior by Martin Daly and Margo Wilson Evolutionary Psychology: The New Science of the Mind (4th Edition) by David M. Buss (Feb 28, 2011) Biosocial criminology is an interdisciplinary field that aims to explain crime and antisocial behavior by exploring biocultural factors. While contemporary criminology has been dominated by sociological theories, biosocial criminology also recognizes the potential contributions of fields such as behavioral genetics, neuropsychology, and evolutionary psychology af823e4b5e

Human sexuality Theory: An Evolutionary Perspective on Human Mating Archived 25 November 2020 at the Wayback Machine by David M. Schmitt Buss, David (2019) Human sexuality is the way people experience and express themselves sexually. The biological and physical aspects of sexuality largely concern the human reproductive functions, including the human sexual response cycle. This involves biological, psychological, physical, erotic, emotional, social, or spiritual feelings and behaviors. Because it is a broad term, which has varied with historical contexts over time, it lacks a precise definition. Buss and David P af823e4b5e

Sperm competition is an evolutionary pressure on males, and has led to the development of adaptations to increase male's chance of reproductive success. Sperm competition results in a sexual conflict between males and females. Males have evolved several defensive tactics including: mate-guarding, mating plugs, and releasing toxic seminal substances to reduce female... af823e4b5e Documenting how personalities develop af823e4b5e While cognitive biases may initially appear to be negative, some are adaptive. They may lead to more effective actions in a given context. Furthermore, allowing cognitive biases enables faster decisions which can be desirable when timeliness is more valuable than accuracy, as illustrated in heuristics. Other cognitive biases are a "by-product" of human processing limitations, resulting... af823e4b5e
