In November 2021, the ICC retrospectively applied List A status to women's cricket, aligning it with the men's game. List A cricket includes One Day International (ODI) matches and various domestic competitions in which the number of overs in an innings per team ranges from forty to sixty, most commonly fifty overs, as well as some international matches involving nations who have not achieved official ODI status 36658f7f39

A list is a set of discrete items of information collected and set forth in some format for utility, entertainment, or other purposes. A list may be memorialized in any number of ways, including existing only in the mind of the list-maker, but lists are frequently written down on paper, or maintained electronically

Mailing lists are often rented or sold. If rented, the renter agrees to use the mailing list only at contractually agreed-upon times. The mailing list owner typically enforces this by "salting" (known as "seeding" in direct mail) the mailing list with fake addresses and creating new salts for each time the list is rented. Unscrupulous renters

may attempt to bypass salts
by renting several lists and merging them to find common, valid addresses.

Electoral list An electoral list can be registered by a political party (a party list) or can constitute a group of independent candidates. Lists can be open, in which case electors have some influence over the ranking of the winning candidates, or closed, in which case the order of candidates is fixed at the registration of the list. An electoral list is a grouping of candidates for election, usually found in proportional or mixed electoral systems, but also in some plurality electoral An electoral list is a grouping of candidates for

Closed list If voters had some influence, that would be called an open list. Many countries, however have changed their electoral systems to use open lists to incorporate personalised representation to their proportional systems. Closed list describes the variant of party-list systems where voters can effectively vote for only political parties as a whole; thus they have no influence Closed list describes the variant of party-list systems where voters can effectively vote for only political parties as a whole; thus they have no influence on the party-supplied order in which party candidates are elected. Closed list systems are still commonly used in party-list proportional representation, and most mixed electoral systems also use closed lists in their party list component 36658f7f39

Open list This is as opposed to closed list, in which party lists are in a predetermined, fixed order by the time of the election and gives the general voter no influence at all on the position of the candidates placed on the party list. Open list describes any variant of party-list proportional representation where voters have at least some influence on the order in which a party's candidates are elected. Open list describes any variant of party-list proportional representation where voters have at least some influence on the order in which a party's candidates are elected.

Electoral lists are required for party-list proportional representation systems.

Vegans are listed separately at: List of vegans.

A list may contain the same value more than once, and each occurrence is considered a distinct item.

The term list is also used for several concrete data structures that can be used to implement abstract lists, especially linked lists and arrays. In some contexts, such as in Lisp programming, the term list may refer specifically to a linked list rather than an array. In class-based programming, lists are usually provided as instances of subclasses of a generic "list" class, and traversed via separate iterators. 36658f7f39
