

Long Term Care Documentation Tips

Drowning Submersion injury refers to both drowning and near-miss incidents. After successful resuscitation, drowning victims may experience breathing problems, confusion, or unconsciousness. An incident of drowning can also cause further complications for victims due to low body temperature, aspiration, or acute respiratory distress syndrome (respiratory failure from lung inflammation). Most instances of fatal drowning occur alone or in situations where others present are either unaware of the victim's situation or unable to offer assistance. Sometimes the term "near-drowning" is used. Drowning is a type of suffocation induced by the submersion of the mouth and nose in a liquid. drowning that results in long-lasting health problems, and drowning that results in no health complications.
