Translation Retrieved 1 February 2006. The English language draws a terminological distinction (which does not exist in every language) between translating (a written text) and interpreting (oral or signed communication between users of different languages); under this distinction, translation can begin only after the appearance of writing within a language community. Friedman Mark Twain Collection Translation is the communication of the meaning of a source-language text by means of an equivalent target-language text. (Frederick); Roy J.
